What Shall I Buy For Dinner To-day?

Our suggestion is

HAMBURGER

But not the Hamburger in the accepted reputation of the word. We don't mean ground up scraps that are gathered up and placed on sale in some shops and called Hamburger.

We mean sure enough Hamburger, prepared from Choice Cuts of Meat ground right before you on our Sanitary Hobart Electric Meat Chopper.

WHAT DOES A CONTINUATION SCHOOL DISTRICT MEAN?

Bath, March 4th, 1913.

To Editor of Express:

Dear Sir—Where a Continuation School is established in a village or town, the County Council may attach to the village or town, for the purposes of this section, portions of one or more townships contiguous thereto.

The County Council has been petitioned to take action along these lines and form a Continuation School District composed of village of Bath and such portions of Townships of Ernestown and South Fredericksburgh as they think wise to add. For what purpose would said district be formed? For the purpose of maintaining in an increased state of efficiency the established school at Bath, giving to all within the district free use of same. It is not necessary that this district be formed to save us from non-existence for the school at Bath has been doing good work too long to die thus.

The cost of maintaining our Continuation School so far as direct tax is concerned is about one-third the cost of maintaining our Public School, which school fortunately must (not may) according to law be kept up.

With reference to the direct tax (if any) paid by Mr. Rowse and the others who signed the petition because he did, they with all others in said district would certainly be relieved of any direct tax they now pay for any Continuation or High School. This is easily found out by any person interested enough to look into the matter, because they have no direct tax to pay for such purposes any more than those living in the far northern townships of the county.

There was no amount of money called for in the petition, simply an estimate submitted as to what the probable cost would be, and I am personally responsible for the estimate. Surely the County Council know what they are asked to do, and what it means to the people in the district which they may form.

Mr. Rowse seems to think the peo-

That Ontario Municipality Get Control of Streets.

TORONTO, March 4. Schools took up the greater part of the session of the Legislature yesterday afternoon, when the Canadian Liberals — Z. Sturgeon Falls and A. E. Prescott — criticized the Government on a return asked by Mr. Foy for all copies of correspondence the Minister of Education members of the Government the past three years relative to investigation made by Dr. of bilingual or English-French.

Mr. Mageau claimed that the Government's investigation should have covered all the primary schools in Ontario and he believed the results as to lack of efficiency would have been different.

Instead of one year of the language of communication in these schools that the Government limit the time so as to have the French language used up to the end of the junior, and then it could be dropped. On behalf of 300 of Ontario he appealed to the Government to grant the rights which he said they were fully entitled to.

In replying, Hon. Dr. Foy said that the great improvement in English-French schools since regulations. Four inspectors appointed and two more schools had been established that uniform text books were under consideration. The Government took every care in selecting and most capable men as All the English inspectors' conversational knowledge of French would be a difficult matter for inspectors more qualified work. In years gone by only 30 minutes were given to teaching of French. He objected to the order of Mr. Foy for the return of correspondence.

Mr. Evanturel denied the split with the Liberal party of his attitude toward schools. The French-Canadian square deal, he said, was more. His main objection new regulations was the action of English inspectors.

Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney General, made an important announcement when speaking to a motion Proudfoot, he said that the Government would, at its session, bring in legislation the Dominion Railway Act secure for the municipalities province the control of highways.

Mr. Proudfoot's motion the Dominion Government memorialized in the matter Foy's amendment expressing the opinion of the province a posed action of the Dominion Government defeated it on a part.

RANDALL EXONERATED.

Charges Against Guelph Police Chief Are All Disproven.

GUELPH, March 4.—Chief of Police F. W. Randall of this city, against whom grave charges were made in connection with the administration of his office in December last by W. H. Robinson and other ratepayers, has been exonerated of every charge made against him. The report of Judge Jamieson, who was appointed to investigate the charges against the chief, and who did so in a most thorough manner, was presented to the City Council at their regular session last night, a large crowd of citizens being present to hear the report read.

In all nine specific charges were made, including that of drunkenness, false arrest, keeping property of which he had no right, making charges for issuing permits and petty graft. The judge finds that not a single charge was sustained, although he questions the discretion of the chief in some instances.

Chief Randall's many friends are warmly congratulating him to-day. He has served the city for the past 31 years, and comes out of this investigation with colors flying.

ETTOR IS SENT BACK.

Labor Man Deported From B. C. by Borden Government.

BLAINE, Wash., March 4.—Joseph Ettor, a strike leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, returned to the United States yesterday, having been taken from a train at White Rock, B.C., last Friday and deported on an order from Ottawa.

Ettor was kept under guard between trains by immigration officers, who reported that he refused to answer questions. He declared that he was a citizen of the United States on his way to Victoria to lecture, and that he could not be detained. He refused to permit his baggage to be searched.

The order from Ottawa gave no reason for deportation except that Ettor was regarded as an agitator and as such he was not wished in the country. Ettor, since his acquittal at Salem, Mass., on a charge of murder, has refused to desert the Industrial Workers of the World, although his family threatened to disown him.

Canadian Liberals Resurrect Bi-lingualism.

French Schools Have Shown Improvement Thus Far Under Regulations, Says Dr. Hon. Mr. Foy Announces that Municipalities Will Control of Streets.

March 4.—Bilingualism is the greater portion of the of the Legislature yesterday, when two French-Canadians — Z. Mageau of Montreal and A. Evanturel of Quebec — criticized the Government's proposed Bill for the Government asked by Mr. Mageau for correspondence between the Department of Education and other departments of the Government during the last year relating to the Bill. It was made by Dr. Merchant of Montreal or English-French schools. He claimed that Dr. Merchant's investigation should have been the primary schools of the Province. He believed that similar to lack of teaching effort had been disclosed in and separate schools.

For one year of French, as a condition of communication and in these schools, he urged the Government lift this restriction to have the French language up to the end of third then it could be gradually introduced in behalf of 300,000 people he appealed to the Government the rights and privileges he said they were right to.

Dr. Pyne spoke of improvement to the English schools since the recent Four inspectors had been and two more training had been established. He said that text books were now under consideration. The Department care in selecting the best capable men as inspectors. English inspectors had a knowledge of French. It is a difficult matter to get more qualified to do the years gone by, he said, that notes were given for the French. He had no objection to the order of Mr. Mageau in correspondence.

Evanturel denied that he had the Liberal party because of attitude toward bilingualism. He said that French-Canadians wanted a deal, he said, and nothing. His main objection to the Bill was the appointment of inspectors.

Mr. Foy, Attorney-General, made an important announcement in regard to a motion of Mr. E. said that the Dominion would, at its present session, in legislation amending the Railway Act, so as to give the municipalities of the Province control of their own

BLOCKED BY CROWDS.

Washington Police Fail Utterly to Protect Suffrage Parade.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Five thousand women, marching the woman suffrage pageant yesterday, practically fought their way foot by foot up Pennsylvania avenue, through a surging mob that completely defied the Washington police, swamped the marchers and broke their procession into little companies. The women, trudging stoutly along under great difficulties, were able to complete their march only when troops of cavalry from Fort Myer were rushed into Washington to take charge of Pennsylvania avenue. No inauguration has ever produced such scenes, which in many instances amounted to nothing less than riots.

Later in Continental Hall the women turned what was to have been a suffrage demonstration into an indignation meeting, in which the Washington police were roundly denounced for the inactivity and resolutions were passed calling upon President-elect Wilson and the incoming Congress to make an investigation and locate the responsibility for the indignities the marchers suffered. Miss Helen Keller, the noted deaf and blind girl, was so exhausted and unnerved by the experience in attempting to reach a grandstand where she was to have been a guest of honor that she was unable to speak later at Continental Hall.

The scenes which attended the entry of "Gen." Rosalie Jones and her "hikers" on Thursday when the bedraggled women had to fight their way up Pennsylvania avenue, swamped by a mob with whom a few policemen struggled in vain, were repeated yesterday, but on a vastly larger scale. The marchers had to fight their way from the start and took more than one hour in making their first ten blocks. Many of the women were in tears under the jibes and insults that lined the route.

Around the Treasury Department the crowds were massed so tightly that repeated charges by the police were seemingly ineffective. It was as though the bluecoats charged a stone wall. Occasionally the mob gave way in one place, and to break over and under the wire hedge in some other.

RATS CAUSE PANIC.

Harriston Church Choir Stampeded by Pair of Rodents.

HARRISTON, March 4.—A panic in a church choir caused by an animal not as poor as a "church mouse," but a well-nourished specimen of the real thing, made its appearance in the choir gallery during the morning service in one of the Presbyterian churches here Sunday, and was responsible for considerable nervous excitement amongst the members of the choir, much to the wonderment of those in the pews, who were unaware of the cause of the commotion.

During the interval between morning and evening services two traps were set baited with a large piece of the celebrated product of the Harriston cheese factory. Although there was every evidence that Mr. Rat had visited the feast prepared for him he hesitated to bite.

Just before the discourse at the evening service Mr. Rat made his appearance again, and after looking over the situation retired, but in a moment reappeared, this time accompanied by Mrs. Rat. Coolly and de-

Ontario's Death Toll Is Three Trainmen Killed.

Unknown Men Succeed in Wrecking G.T.R. Train at Hanover and Several Persons Are Hurt—Eastbound Wabash Express Meets With Disaster Near Cayuga and a Score Are Hurt—Conductor Killed.

HANOVER, Ont., March 4.—A deliberate attempt to wreck the Owen Sound G.T.R. train here succeeded yesterday and several persons were injured.

A piece of steel plate about two feet long and a foot wide was placed across the rail, and fastened underneath by means of some planking. Train No. 6, coming from Owen Sound to Toronto, and traveling at thirty miles an hour, at 7.33 a.m., crashed into the obstruction and jumped the rails, continuing on for about 100 feet, and then swerving to one side into a ditch.

George Cole of Chesley, a news agent, was seriously injured internally, and was removed to Palmerston Hospital.

The others of the injured are: Conductor T. Denham, Owen Sound; head and leg injured; Engineer R. Irwin, Stratford, head and legs injured; Charles Argue, fireman, Stratford; head and body injured; Fireman A. E. Warning, London, hip injured; T. Hill, conductor, London, head and body injured; W. RIOT IN PICCADILLY.

London Mob Bars Entrances to Suffragette Meeting.

LONDON, March 4.—There was further evidence yesterday of the exas-peration of a section of the public at the suffragette campaign of violence. For over two hours there were scenes of disorder outside the Pavilion Theatre, Piccadilly Circus, where militants hold weekly meetings. The theatre was in a state of siege. The demonstration followed the decision of the organizers of the meeting to refuse entry to men as the result of last week's scenes at suffrage meetings.
 The men thereupon determined not to allow any women to enter the theatre. "No men, no women," was the cry, and they formed a solid phalanx and refused to make a gangway for the women. Piccadilly Circus presented an extraordinary spectacle.

AN EARLY PURE FOOD LAW.

English Bakers Had to Be Careful in the Old Days.

In the time of Edward I. of England innkeepers were not permitted to make either bread or beer. The former they were obliged by law to buy from the baker and the latter from the brewer.
 In "Customs of Old England" F. J.
 Snell declares that if the law defended what was considered the legitimate claim of the baker to a proper livelihood it was equally solicitous for the welfare of his customers and was most severe upon the baker who sold bread deficient in weight or quality.

For the first offense he was drawn on a hurdle through the principal streets, which would be thronged with people and foul with traffic, with the offending loaf suspended from his neck.
 From a pen and ink sketch of this ceremony it appears that the unhappy tradesman wore neither shoes nor stockings and had his arms strapped to his sides. It seems also that two horses drew the hurdle, which suggests that it rattled along at a pretty lively pace.

For the second offense the baker enjoyed another ride upon the hurdle and then underwent an hour's exposure in the pillory. If he proved so incorrigi-ble as to commit the offense a third time his oven was demolished and he was forbidden to follow his trade.

 of Parry Sound, was rescued practically unhurt, although suffering from shock. The fireman, George Toms of Parry Sound, was caught underneath the engine, and was killed instantly.
 The brakeman, John Smart of Mount Albert, fell between the engine and tender, and was crushed underneath one of the trucks of the latter. His death must have been also instantaneous. The engineer states that the train was going 15 miles an hour.

One Killed at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, March 4.—A rear-end collision occurred at 6.45 yesterday morning in the G.T.R. yards here, resulting in the death of Robert A.
 Doyle, formerly of Toronto, and injuries to Brakeman James McMurray, also of Toronto.

Doyle was conductor on the forward train, and was in the van when the engine from the freight train following crashed into it. Doyle was instantly killed, his neck being broken and his body badly crushed.

Doyle was transferred to Belleville from Toronto several years ago. He leaves a widow and four children.

Twenty Are Injured.

HAMILTON, March 4.—Spreading rails are blamed for the wreck of the Wabash express shortly after seven o'clock yesterday morning, a few miles east of Cayuga. The train, bound from Detroit for Buffalo, was speeding forty miles an hour, when five coaches suddenly left the rails, rattled along over the ties for a short distance and then toppled sideways over an embankment of twenty feet.
 There was over a hundred passengers on the train. Fully a score were hurt.

The worst injured is H. H. Hamilton of Chicago. He is suffering from a fractured leg, severe cuts about the head, and may be injured internally.

Edward Evans of Detroit, a Pullman car porter, is badly injured internally and severely cut about the head, while Brakeman McKellar, also of Detroit, is seriously injured internally.

Head-On Collision at Ridgeway.

PORT COLBORNE, March 4.—A head-on collision on the Grand Trunk occurred Sunday evening at Ridgeway station. A double-header freight going west and a heavy cattle train going east collided in a blinding snowstorm. The train going east had the right of way, and was running at about thirty miles an hour. The crews of the three engines jumped and saved themselves. The engines were completely demolished, three cars of cattle were piled up, and seven of the men in charge of the cattle were injured. They were taken to the Buffalo Hospital; their names could not be learned.

Conductor Hurt.

GUELPH, March 4.—Luckily the airbrakes on engine No. 2,455 worked alright yesterday morning. Engineer Sam Anderson was at the throttle, heading a heavy freight train through the local C.P.R. yards, when suddenly out of the storm, a yard engine loomed up before him, and the engines pitched into each other at a much decreased speed. Conductor Reed was hurt.

 which enacted that any one found in

The American's Gambling Ways.

In a letter from "A German in America," published in a Berlin newspaper, the writer dwells at length on the "American's fondness for gambling and his proficiency in the art." "His business methods," says the writer,
 "are speculative and not conservative, like ours, and he takes great risks to reach the coveted goal of riches. At school he plays games with the small copper coin of the country, and when he reaches college he plays poker. He gambles on the outcome of the athletic contests in his and rival educational institutions, and when driven to the wall in argument, no matter what the subject may be, the final and usually effective weapon is a bet. From school he goes into business. If this happens to be in the 'financial' line, there is no interruption of the gambling habits acquired at school. If he goes into commerce and can resist the temptations of the men who dangle before his eyes visions of fortunes made by speculating in stocks, he may be saved. But usually he succumbs and is worse off than the financial gambler, because he becomes a speculator in his own business and in the stock market also. It must be a dreadful strain on the men, but they seem to thrive on it and to grow fat and rich as well, and only we who worry about them remain poor."

PERMANENT TRIBUTE POLICY

PREMIER BORDEN INDICATES THAT HIS IDEA IS OF PERMANENT CONTRIBUTION.

Ottawa, March 1st, 1913.—The only surprise of the final stage of the debate on the second reading of Mr. Borden's Naval Bill was the blundering way in which, while trying to answer Sir Wilfrid Laurier's brilliant criticisms, the Premier without intending to, made it perfectly clear both to the House and to the country that the contribution policy is not a mere sporadic outburst, but is the beginning of a permanent policy of tribute. While Mr. Borden did not in set phrases express this, the gist of his whole speech led irresistibly to that conclusion—a conclusion which was apparent to every thinking man before he spoke. It was only when stung by Sir Wilfrid Laurier's close criticism that the Leader of the Nationalist-Tory combination gave himself away. The final stages of the second reading were chiefly conspicuous by Sir Wilfrid Laurier's brilliant speech, apart from that there was not the same lively ebullitions of feeling as on previous naval votes.

It was very late when the Opposition Leader rose, but he was never in finer form. Sir Wilfrid said that the whole ground work of Liberal opposition to this tribute policy was their rights as Canadians, their duties as British subjects. He showed conclusively from utterances of British statesmen that the British fleet was never in a more commanding position than to-day and declared that the contribution was unnecessary as giving England what she did not need. In fact the whole idea, he declared, was submitted under false pretences, since the message put into the mouth of H. R. H. the Governor General contained assurances of an emergency which were altogether unfounded, as was proven by the famous Memorandum itself. And although the Conservatives had hinted at important secret information, Sir Wilfrid warmly declared this was impossible because it was not the habit of British statesmen to say one thing in public and the reverse in secret.

As to the "German menace," Sir Wilfrid bowled out this bugaboo, from the utterances of both German and election in which he would have to appeal to a people now fully informed as to the methods by which this tribute policy was born of the Nationalist and Tory alliance by which he is now trying to force the Canadian people to pay $35,000,000 to become foster-mother to the off-spring.

There were three votes on the amendments and main motion. Mr. Guilbault's Nationalist amendment demanding a plebiscite was smothered by 187-11. Mr. Turfitt's amendment calling for redistribution and an election on the naval question attracted an almost straight party vote save that four Nationalists voted for it. The final vote on Mr. Borden's motion for a second reading gave the smallest Government majority yet recorded on the naval issue, only 30. It was opposed by all the Liberals, except Col. McLean and seven of the Nationalists, the final count being 114-84, the remaining 8 Nationalists voted with the Government. This reduction in the Government majority was greeted with enthusiastic cheers from the Liberal benches.

GERMAN PERIL WASTE PAPER.

Admiral von Tirpitz' statement in the German Parliament formally accepting on behalf of the German Government, Winston Churchill's doctrine that British supremacy on the sea must be kept up and recognized with at least a 60% superiority over Germany, drove the last nail into the coffin of the still born Borden emergency. Not merely in England was the German statesman's utterance welcomed, but also in Germany and throughout the world as a harbinger of peace, and the end of cut-throat naval competition. This is shown by the "Neue Freie Presse," a leading German newspaper, which on the day after Von Tirpitz' declaration said, "The point in the important turn in the relations between England and Germany is that British Supremacy at sea is to be recognized now and for the future by Germany. The legends about German invasion are now become waste paper. In the history of nations there is no such example of understanding as that intended by which the German Empire is to take upon itself in this or some other form to remain at a certain distance behind the British naval power. This is surely one of the rarest and strongest guarantees of the peaceful disposition of a country."

Discussing this, the Westminster Gazette of February 8th say—"The Germans have their naval law fixed for some years to come and they are not likely to increase it unless the political strain is renewed. If the Bennet, the verbal cyclone from Calgary, gave a good idea of the sort of fusion the Tories are relying upon to blind the people as to the real merits of the Borden emergency tribute.

Mr. Bennet said: "I have listened for hours to the talk about the willingness of Hon. Gentlemen opposite to do this and that for the British Empire. I looked through the Statutes books on this country and I looked in vain to find any just or reasonable effort on their part to convert that talk into something concrete."

Mr. Bennet did not evidently look far enough to discover the Naval Service Act of May 4th, 1910, which his party so vigorously contested, nor the advertisements published throughout Canada in July 1910, for the construction in Canada of exactly the war vessels advised by the British Admiralty and for which the lowest tender was $11,280,000. Nor apparently has he discovered that the Laurier Government took over the naval bases at Esquimaux and Halifax with garrisons and upkeep, their shipyards and docks at a cost of considerably over $1,000,000 per year. Nor has he discovered the organization of the Department of Naval Service under Admiral Kingsmill. He had just discovered enough to pervert the facts and indulge in cheap sneers at the Niobe and Rainbow, rated by the British Admiralty as a first and second class cruiser and bought by Canada simply as training ships. Nor did he mention that so soon as the Tory Government came into power they deliberately proceeded to spoil all the concrete work accomplished by the Liberals, to discourage recruiting and belittle all talk of Canadian Navy. The "concrete" is probably nearer to Mr. Bennet's Tory prototypes.

Then Mr. Bennet said—"Germany stands on an equality with England in the constructions of dreadnoughts. They can build these ships as rapidly as Great Britain can and they can man ships with almost as good sailors as England can."

Yet such an authority as the British First Lord of the Admiralty said in the British Parliament that the point was not whether Germany could build dreadnoughts as fast as England, the point was that in practise she did not. And the Manchester Guardian of February 17th, last says, "We are able to build a dreadnought in two years, Germany three. Consequently our rate of progress is relatively faster."

Again Mr. Bennet does not appear to have looked for the facts. Mr. Bennet was particularly eloquent describing the German menace—"Because England's power is concentrated at a point where in the day of peril it will be struck in the North Sea. In this hour of peril which must be known to the gentlemen opposite in this awful moment of peril—I do not have to call it an emergency—men who cavil and joke and treat lightly the memorandum such as this if little regard for the great duties and obligations of citizenship."

Yet for days before Mr. Bennet discovered this awful peril the whole world was ringing with the declaration of Admiral Von Tirpitz, who is the German equivalent for the First Lord of the Admiralty that Germany formally recognized the necessity of Great Britain's sea supremacy and would be content to abide by Mr. Churchill's programme of 60% superiority over the German fleet.

If Mr. Bennett fulfils his ambition of getting into the English parliament he will have to find better authority for his statements or he will be of less importance than even a "tin pot navy." Yet Mr. Bennett's speech was loudly applauded by the Tories who preserve their ancient custom of feeling sorry for the facts if the facts do not agree with their views.

pressed this was impossible because it was not the habit of British statesmen to say one thing in public and the reverse in secret.

As to the "German menace," Sir Wilfrid bowed out this bugaboo, from the utterances of both German and British statesmen. And, he asked, was it not absurd to imagine that Canada would be adding to the prestige of the Empire by sending her contribution on the theory that Great Britain's naval forces imperatively needed strengthening?

In scathing terms Sir Wilfrid denounced the coalition of the Nationalists and Tories, especially the taking of the three Leaders into the Cabinet, a sight calculated "to make angels weep," while of the Nationalist Ministers, he said, "you can fill the stomach of a leopard but you cannot change his spots."

Sir Wilfrid quoted from Mr. Borden's demands for a voice in the issues of peace and war as proof that the contribution policy would become permanent—a view emphasized by Mr. Ames with his imperial federation ideas.

Every evidence, declared Sir Wilfrid, pointed to the inauguration of regular naval tribute, a complete departure from any policy since Confederation, and one which demanded an appeal to the country. "There is not an emergency," he declared, "and therefore it is still open to us to have this appeal, which would settle once and for all whether we should continue in the path blazed by the Fathers of Confederation or whether we should retrace our steps altogether."

In his concluding remarks, Sir Wilfrid firmly outlined the Liberal policy—"We of the Liberal party who had then (when the Liberal naval programme was introduced,) the management of public affairs, were denounced in one section of the country as separatists and in another as jingoes. But though assailed we were never dismayed. We held our course in good fortune and in bad fortune. Though assailed and defeated to-day we see no reason why we should change one iota of the policy which we then adopted."

We follow our course as the good ship in mid-ocean, which though battered by storm and wind, and all the fury of the unchained elements still steadily, slowly ploughs its course towards the port—and that port is imperial unity based upon local autonomy."

There was a burst of enthusiasm at the conclusion of Sir Wilfrid's speech which the Conservatives tried in vain to emulate as Mr. Borden rose to reply. The Premier's speech was peculiar in every way. It was more in the nature of a piece of special pleading than the utterance of a statesman on a matter of national policy. It was specially remarkable for its frank admission of the "One Empire, one Navy idea"—the old Tory idea of Empire and tribute. While avoiding many of the real issues raised, Mr. Borden spent a lot of time trying to twist the various Liberal amendments so as to make them mean something which everybody in the House knew they did not mean. And then with a pile of fantastic figuring which would have done credit to Hon. Mr. Foster, the Premier tried to prove that Sir Wilfrid's two fleet units proposition would cost the country $150,000,000—in this outdoing the wildest financial acrobatics of several of his followers. But Mr. Borden made it sufficiently clear that he considered a navy for Canada much too costly—the obvious inference being that he preferred the easy policy of permanent tribute. And then to clinch this impression he proceeded to argue that it would take anywhere from two to twenty-four years to train the various grades of men and officers a Canadian navy would require.

He, however, made one thing very plain and that is that he dreads an

of a country."

Discussing this, the Westminster Gazette of February 8th says—"The Germans have their naval law fixed for some years to come and they are not likely to increase it unless the political strain is renewed. If the political strain is not renewed we shall not in a few years hence emerge into a position in which it will be agreed on both sides that a cut-throat naval competition is mere folly. We have learned during the past year that there is more sense in Europe than the pessimist supposed."

Mr. Borden's anxiety to send to England $35,000,000 of borrowed money to increase this "cut-throat naval competition" is hardly likely to enable people there to learn that there is more sense in the Canadian Government than the pessimist supposed. The establishment of a navy to guard and patrol our own sphere of influence as advised by the British Admiralty, and as is now being done by Australia would be a much wiser proceeding and one which would strengthen the Empire without baiting any European naval power to further cut-throat naval competition. It should be for the Canadian people to decide whether to imitate European folly or European wisdom.

LESS, NOT MORE SHIPS.

The Manchester Guardian discussing the effect of Admiral Von Tirpitz' agreement for Germany to accept the British 60% superiority in naval strength says—"The 5 ships of this year's programme which Mr. Churchill spoke of last year may now be reduced to 4 with safety and with advantage to our prestige and to the ends of sound foreign policy." Following the same argument the Canadian "emergency" idea of a $35,000,000 donation may well be changed into the less contentious and wiser plan of a naval service for the protection of our own coasts as an integral part of the Imperial fleet.

Should the Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Mr. Borden's Nationalist colleague, take any part in the future debates on naval question there are one or two things he has forgotten, but which it would interest the country if he would explain. For instance at Jeanne Lorette last October, when re-elected as Postmaster General by acclamation he said to his constituents—"It has not been necessary in order that I might accept a portfolio in this new Government that I should retract one word of what I said when I was a candidate before. As a re-elected Minister I am here before you on this question (the Navy) with the same ideas, the same words, the same programme as formerly. In two words I was for the plebiscite, I remain for the plebiscite. If better were offered it goes without saying I should not refuse it."

Evidently since returning to Ottawa the Nationalist Postmaster General has found reason to change his ideas as well words and programme. Premier Borden has found arguments of such potency that Mr. Pelletier no longer remains for the "plebiscite." He has voted against it and presumably will continue to do so.

will have to find better authority for his statements or he will be of less importance than even a "tin pot navy." Yet Mr. Bennett's speech was loudly applauded by the Tories who preserve their ancient custom of feeling sorry for the facts if the facts do not agree with their views.

The position of affairs with regard to the naval debate was clearly outlined in a recently published letter by Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King. Mr. King contrasts Mr. Borden's statement that "Every Canadian will realize in seeing or reading of these ships that they are a gift in which he has participated" with the Premier's declaration of February 13th that "We do not propose that these ships shall pass out of the ownership of the Canadian people or Government. Our proposal is that these ships shall be in the ownership of the Canadian people."

Further these being the largest and strongest war ships in the world, Mr. King pointed out that they would naturally be kept where danger was most imminent as long as they were controlled by Great Britain.

He outlined the new problem raised by this in the following words:

"What is to be the nature of these ships? To again use Mr. Borden's own words, in his speech of December 5th, 'They will be the three most powerful battleships in the world.' That Canada, this young industrial country, not yet, according to Mr. Borden and his followers, sufficiently a nation to construct and control a fleet unit of its own, is suddenly to become the owner of 'the three most powerful battleships in the world.'"

But ownership cannot be divorced from the object owned. These ships, moreover, are to bear Canadian names. What does this mean? It means that Canada becomes instantly an outstanding participant in Old World conflicts. Is this the Canadians wish? Better a thousand times for the British Empire, for England and for Canada, if ships must be built, that they should be given outright, or better still, that the $35,000,000 be handed over to the British government without condition, than that Canada should be placed in the false position, through an abortive ownership, of incurring a new responsibility, while the right of exercising it is taken from her hand and transferred to other hands.

SILVER WEDDINGS.

They Had Their Origin In the Reign of Hugues Capet.

The fashion of silver weddings dates back to the reign of Hugues Capet, king of France in 987.

Once as Hagues was arranging his uncle's affairs he found c1 one of the estates a servant who had grown grey in the service of his relative. He had been such a friend of his master that he was almost looked upon as one of the family.

On the farm with this old man was also a serving woman who was as old as he and also unmarried and who had been the most devoted and hard-working of the women servants of the king's uncle. When the king heard these praises of the two, he ordered them to be brought before him and said to the woman:

"Your service is great, greater than this man's, whose services were great enough, for the woman always finds work and obedience harder than a man, and there I will give you a reward. At your age I know of none better than a dowry and a husband. The dowry is here—this farm from this time forth belongs to you. If this man who has worked with you five and twenty years is willing to marry you, then the husband is ready."

"Your Majesty," stuttered the old peasant confusedly, "how is it possible that we should marry, having already silver hairs?"

"Then it shall be a silver wedding," answered the king, "and here I give you a wedding ring," drawing a costly ring from his finger and placing the hands of the thankful old people together.

This soon became known all over France and raised such enthusiasm that it became a fashion after a twenty-five years' marriage to celebrate a silver wedding.

A Very Cute Faker.

Enormous business has been done at a French fair by a man selling a rat powder, sure death to rodents, but harmless to human beings. In order to convince the skeptical, the man first of all powdered a slice of bread with the stuff and ate a piece. The remainder he put under a glass case, in which a rat was kept in captivity. The rat went to eat the bread and instantly fell dead. At 10 cents a box the powder sold at a furious rate, and the man was in a fair way to make his fortune when the police pounced on him. The powder was found to be ordinary sugar, and they also discovered that the case was connected with a powerful electric battery and that the moment the rat touched the bread the current was turned on, and it was thus his death was brought about. The ingenious fakir was given a month in jail, and the business came to a stop.

Paris Police Reports.

At the prefecture of police in Paris are preserved the most characteristic reports drawn up by policemen during the last thirty years. Thus, one guardian of the law announces his discovery of "the skeleton of a head whose owner I was unable to find." Another, with a love for brevity, wrote, "This gentleman gave me his card of membership of the Society of Animals." Yet another solemnly deposes that "the injured man was unable to write, seeing that both of his feet were crushed." "The doctor we sent for stated that the injured man had his whole body covered with confusions." was found in another re-

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

Care With Which England's Standards Are Preserved.

Every twenty years government officials compare the current weights and measures with the standards, which are sealed up in the staircase of the house of commons. There are only two standards, the pound weight and the yard measure. The standard pound is of platinum, which despite its weight is no larger than a cubic inch, and, small as it is, the metal of which it is composed is worth £40. The standard yard is a bar of bronze thirty-eight inches long, on which a yard has been marked off in thirty-six divisions of an inch. The greatest possible care is taken of these two important articles.

When a comparison is being made they are handled with tongs. The pound weight is weighed in the most delicate of chemical balances, and the yard is measured with a micrometer. When they are done with the pound it is wrapped in a special soft paper and laid in a silver gilt case, which is placed in a bronze case, this being put in a wooden box, afterward screwed down and sealed. The yard measure is placed on eight rollers in a mahogany case, which is carefully sealed. Both cases are then put into a leaden casket, which is sealed by soldering. The packing is not yet finished, however, for the lead case is placed in a strong oak box. When this is screwed down it is placed in the hole in the wall. The wall is built up by a mason, and the standards can only be obtained by demolishing it once more.—London Globe.

A HANDICAP IN GOLF.

It Was a Rather Mean Advantage, but It Won't the Game.

An unusual golf handicap was played on one of the local links recently, the proponent of the same winning hands down. One of the rules of golf is that one must not talk to a player when he is about to make a drive, nor must others discuss any subject in his hearing. It might take his mind off the game for just an instant, and that might prove fatal.

In Kansas City lives a crack but extremely nervous golf enthusiast. He had been in the habit of beating a fat and phlegmatic friend until the latter tired of it.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," the friend said not long ago. "I will play you eighteen holes if you will give me a handicap."

"Done," said the nervous player. "Name the handicap."

"Three times during the game, and not more than three, I am to be permitted to stand behind you and say 'Boo!' while you are preparing to drive."

Every time it was the nervous man's play his fat friend walked up and just stood behind him. Never once during the game did the fat man say "Boo!" or anything else. But the anticipation at the expected "Boo!" was fairly nerve shattering, and the fat man won hands down.—Kansas City Journal.

DO YOUR VERY BEST.

And Then Be Sure That You Are Satisfied With Yourself.

It is not what people say about you—it's what you are that counts. The one person in all this world whom you should aim to satisfy is yourself. You alone know yourself. Other people know your outward appearance, your actions, your deeds. You, and you alone, know your motives, your ambitions, your thoughts.

Are you satisfied with yourself? It is your own fault if you are not. Are you satisfied that you are doing the best you can in your work, that you are making the most of your time? Are you confident that your conduct toward your family, your friends, your neighbors, your employer, cannot be improved?

Look yourself straight in the face this morning in your mind's looking glass. Ask yourself whether it is what people say about you or what you are that hurts. Analyze your own conduct, in all matters.

Impertinent.

The curate of a large and fashion- able church was endeavoring to teach the significance of white to a Sunday school class.

"Why," said he, "does a bride in- variably desire to be clothed in white at her marriage?"

As no one answered, he explained. "White," he said, "stands for joy, and the wedding day is the most joyous occasion of a woman's life."

A small boy queried, "Why do the men all wear black?"

The Giant Squid.

One of the most terrifying creatures of the sea is the giant squid. It is claimed it will not hesitate to attack a boat if sufficiently angered. Many scientists hold that the giant squid is responsible for the sea serpent stories. This creature rises to the surface in deep water and propels itself with great rapidity just under the top of the waves. This curious jerky motion, due to the ejection of water from its baglike body, makes what is seen of the creature seem very serpentine.

Grant and Lee.

In reminiscences of President Grant by Robert M. Douglass, his private secretary, in the Youth's Companion he says:

"One afternoon a tall, handsome man of splendid presence and with a grave, courteous face entered my office and modestly announced himself as Robert E. Lee. When I told the president he directed me to bring the distinguished visitor in at once. Their meeting was cordial, but apparently their recollections brought feelings of sadness to both men. The president, with his usual consideration, presented me to General Lee, who knew my family and who greeted me kindly. I expressed my pleasure at meeting him and then retired from the room. I felt that at such a time no one should intrude. The visit was merely one of courtesy and did not last long. I believe that it was the only time after the war that the two great generals met."

Distance of Planets.

The distance of the sun and planets from the earth may best be perceived by the following fact: A train of cars going at a mile a minute would reach the moon in 150 days, Venus in fifty years, Mars in seventy-six years, Mercury in 110 years, the sun in 175 years, Jupiter in 740 years, Saturn in 1,470 years, Uranus in 3,160 years, Neptune in 5,055 years. To reach the nearest fixed star our train, steadily maintaining its mile a minute speed, would require about 40,000,000 years. You may rely upon the general accu- racy of the above schedule.—New York American.

Clouds.

Clouds are simply masses of vapor of more or less density, and their different colors are produced by the light of the sun shining on and through them. The dark usually seen on the underside of the white or pink- edged clouds is the shadow of the body of vapor or the absence of light on the underside of the cloud.

glass. Ask yourself whether it is what people say about you or what you are that hurts. Analyze your own conduct, in all matters.

Put yourself in the other fellow's place and try to see your actions through his eyes. Imagine that you are your employer instead of yourself. Answer honestly whether if he knew as much about you as you know about yourself he would discharge you or would raise your wages. If you do this conscientiously there are many things you will do differently.

Remember this, too—other people's opinion of you is based on your own opinion of yourself. Are you self re- specting? Other people will respect you. Are you truthful? The world will believe you. Are you honest? Ev- ery one will trust you.

But weigh yourself frequently. Weigh yourself carefully. Be certain that your own opinion of yourself is justi- fied. Be satisfied with yourself.—Wil- liam Johnston in American Magazine.

CRABBE, THE NEGLECTED.

A Poet Whom Byron Called Nature's Best and Sternest Painter.

Dante was a great traveler and the greatest pen impressionist who ever wrote. He describes a landscape in a line so that it stays with you forever. He uses the fewest possible number of words, hardly any adjectives, and the picture leaps up before you, immortal and unforgettable. Who can do this, among the moderns? Keats could. Tennyson gives you English landscape. If you read "In Memoriam" you have lived a year in the English country and seen the march of the English seasons. Crabbe can do it. Who reads Crabbe? Nobody. And yet he is a wonderful poet, as realistic as Tolstoy and Arnold Bennett. Byron called him the best painter of nature—"Na- ture's sternest painter, yet her best."

He writes about the poor as they are, without sentimentality and with- out exaggeration, and as a painter of English landscape he still remains the best. He may not be read by the modern generation, but he is not forgotten. A Frenchman wrote a long and excel- lent book about him not long ago. He is safe in the temple of fame, which place you have entered and can't leave. And this temple is like a wheel. It goes round and round, and some of its inmates are in the glare of the sun, and sometimes they are in the shade, but they are there, and they never fall out.—Maurice Baring in Metropolitan.

Writing For Posterity.

A prominent French critic, the story runs, once said to George Bernard Shaw:

"You are putting on a new comedy Monday night. Let me attend one of the dress rehearsals, won't you?"

"Impossible," said Mr. Shaw. "My dress rehearsals are always private. I have to refuse even the most distin- guished critics access to them."

"But," said the other, "I want to write a critical criticism. If I have to write and telegraph it in a few min- utes on Monday night it will be very hurriedly done, and I fear it will give a wrong impression of your comedy to Paris the next day."

"Have no anxiety on that score," Mr. Shaw replied. "My comedies are not written for the next day."—Exchange.

Live Stock and Seed Judging at Enterprize.

Arrangements have been completed for the holding of a Free Course in Live Stock and Seed Judging at Enterprize, on Friday, Mar. 14th. This course will be conducted along similar lines to the one held in Napanee in January. Some of the best men in Stock and Seed Judging have been selected to give instructions. Mr. H. Sirett, B.S.A., Ottawa, late Assistant Dominion Cerealists, will have charge of the Seed work, which will be held in Keech's Hall in the forenoon from 10.00 to 12.00. In the afternoon from 2.00 to 4.00 Mr. R. H. Stevenson, Ancaster, one of the foremost Dairy Cattle Judges, in Canada, will conduct the work on the Judging of Dairy Cows at the farm of Mr. W. H. Vanneest. Every farmer should make a special effort to attend this Course, where he will have an opportunity of acquainting himself more closely with these two particular phases of Agriculture.

An ever increasing public attention is being directed to the social evil of White Slave Traffic, and various expedients have been suggested and adopted for its suppression. Among these we find that in England it has been decided that the lash should be the punishment meted out to those engaged in the trade but whether this will really be beneficial is very doubtful. In the first place great latitude is left to the magistrate in passing judgment upon these offenders and it is not unlikely, that many magistrates will dismiss cases rather than condemn the accused to the lash. Then the punishment itself, far from having any result as to improving the criminal, only hardens and degrades him, and is accompanied by a rather short imprisonment. Better a longer detention, which keeps him from plying his trade and which cannot be as brutalizing as the lash. It looks like a reversion to eighteenth century ideals, when an attempt was made to suppress stealing by punishing the theft of anything, from a sheep to a shilling, by hanging. We all know how this punishment failed of its aim. After all any attempt to suppress the white slave traffic by laws against the traffickers cannot but prove abortive unless the causes underlying the evil are removed. Let legislation see to it that women and girls are paid a living wage and have only such hours of labor that they may be enabled to have a share in innocent amusement, then you undermine the whole traffic. But if we are to judge Ontario by the overwhelming majority in the Provincial House opposed to improved factory conditions for women and children, there is little hope along that line, unless the electorate be changed and the women workers given representation that they may protect themselves and the children of the race.

The Historical Lectures.

Last Friday evening the members bers and friends of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society were entertained by an excellent lecture delivered by Rev. Canon G. L. Starr, of Kingston. The subject, "The Story of Old St. George's Cathedral in Kingston," was one which gave Canon Starr an excellent opportunity to combine the early history of the Anglican Missionaries with that of the pioneers of the Midland District and in doing this he gave many interesting facts. His sketch of the life of the Rev. John Stuart and the work which that most beloved man did was probably the best part of the lecture. It appealed to his audience because so little has been written about Mr. Stuart and what has been written is not easily accessible. This great missionary was so closely associated with the first beginnings of the Anglican Church in Upper Canada that he might almost be said to be the founder of St. George's. The lecturer gave carefully prepared facts with regard to the various developments in connection with the Church bringing his information down to the present time. He told of the association of different families with the Church—particularly the Cartwright family—and explained how the present location was chosen. The great fire which destroyed the building in 1899 and the splendid response to the appeal for funds to rebuild on a grander scale were carefully described and Canon Starr closed his remarks with a short description of the present building and its beautiful ornaments. After the lecture the President of the Society thanked Canon Starr for his goodness in coming to Napanee and giving the lecture. In acknowledging the President's remarks Canon Starr explained that the subject matter of the lecture was being printed in book form and that the profits from the sale of the book were to be used to erect a suitable memorial to the Rev. John Stuart. After an announcement that the next meeting of the Society would be held on Friday evening, March 28th, the meeting closed with "God Save the King."

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chamber,
March 3rd, 1913.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor Steacy was not present at the opening of the council and Reeve Osborne occupied the chair.

Present—Reeve Osborne and Councilors Alexander, Walters, Carson and Dickinson.

The minutes of the last regular session were read and confirmed.

Mayor Steacy entered and took his seat.

A communication was read from Mr. Hepburn, Picton, in reference to the Ontario and Quebec Navigation Co. putting a steamer on the Picton-Napanee route this coming summer. Mr. Hepburn stated the company had taken no decided action in this matter as yet. Last year the boat on this route had not been a paying concern. The company would also like to know if it was the intention of Napanee people to put a boat on this route, because if this was so his company would not wish to be competitors for the business.

Communication filed.

Several communication were read from W. J. Paul, M. P., in reference to the building of a drill hall in Napanee, the completion of the dredging of the Napanee river, and the matter of the government assuming the cost of the lighting of the clock in the post office.

Concerning the drill hall Mr. Paul stated that Col. Sam Hughes, the Minister of Militia, had given instructions to have the sum of $35,000 placed in the supplementary estimates for this purpose, and if this amount was not sufficient the balance could be taken from the general fund.

As to the finishing of the dredging of the river Mr. Paul gave assurances that the work would be completed.

He would also look into the question concerning the lighting of the post office clock.

The several communications were ordered filed.

Two offers were made the council for the Isolation Hospital lands and buildings. Mr. Amos Walker offered the sum of $175, and Mr. Geo. A. Hartman offered $150.

Both offers were laid on the table. Coun. Carson, Chairman of Streets Committee, reported on the several accounts of the engineer, which had been referred to his committee. With the exception of one item the several accounts were correct, and the one in question had been made right and he recommended the adoption of the report.

Report adopted.

The Streets Committee also reported on the petition of A. D. Snider and others for a grant towards repairing the suspension bridge crossing the river just below the falls. The report reads as follows:

Your committee to whom was referred the petition of A. D. Snider and others beg leave to report as follows: Your committee believes that the corporation of the Town of Napanee is not responsible for the maintenance of the suspension bridge, and your committee recommends that no action be taken by the council that might be construed as an exercise of control over that bridge.

Your committee recommends that the $50 paid to the town treasurer by the council of North Fredericksburgh be returned to the treasurer of said township.

Your committee further recommends that this council donate to the said petitioners the sum of $50, but at the same time the clerk do notify said

RESTITUTION IN "PEARL OF ANTILLES"

Pastor Russell, Returning From Panama, Visits Havana.

Modern Application of a Familiar Text—What the Bible Means by "Restitution Times"—The Pastor Claims Each "Time" a Year, a Thousand Altogether and a Beginning Made.

Havana, Cuba, March 2.—Pastor Russell is delighted with Cuba, and does not fail to call attention to the wide contrast between prevalent sanitary conditions and those of a short time ago, when this fair land suffered continually from yellow fever and other tropical ailments. The Pastor referred to General Wood as the one through whose energy and skill Cuba's restitution and rejuvenation came about. "Honor to whom honor is due," appears to be one of Pastor Russell's mottoes. The text was Acts 3:19-21: "Time of Restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His Holy Prophets since the world began." He said:

In Panama a week ago I saw one of the stupendous works of man in subduing the earth and making it suitable to his purposes. How wisely God has left the subduing of the earth to man! A blessing must come to humanity from mastering nature. I testified respecting the increased education of mankind through modern inventions, which speak to us of the dawning of the New Era so long foretold in the Bible.

To-day I point you to man's increasing skill along other lines. The laws of health are better understood than ever before. The laws of chemistry, applicable to nearly everything in life, are marvelously clear and greatly extended beyond anything of previous times. This increased knowledge lies close to the work of sanitation, so widely approved. The sudden influx of knowledge is a sign of the dawning of the New Day of God's favor—Restitution.

Millennial Work in Cuba.

The Pastor urged his congregation to consider the wonderful transformation in their fair Island an exemplification of the great work to prevail world-wide shortly. It properly raises our estimation of human intelligence, and of the beneficence of the United States Government, whose agent General Wood was in this transforming work. What has taken place so markedly in Cuba under sanitary regulations is gradually being accomplished all over the world.

The Scriptures everywhere associate the glorious work of human uplift with Messiah's Kingdom. Perhaps many have expected the blessing to come in another way; nevertheless, all should see the facts and acknowledge prophetic fulfillments. Instead of being disappointed that God is using humanity for the fulfilment of His

DESERONTO ROAD.

The sawing machine has just completed Austin Kimmerly's job and has moved to Herch Avlesworth's.

The farmers on this road are improving the sleighing hauling up wood and saw logs.

Quite a lot of changes took place last week. Mr. Sandy Reed moved to Napanee, having bought a placethere, and Mr. Herb File has moved on the farm vacated by Mr. Reed and owned by Mr. M. S. Madole, of Napanee, while Mr. Wallace Amey and family have moved on the Levi Sager farm just vacated by Mr. Herb File.

Mr. Charley Reedyeo, sr. died recently at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Todd.

Mr. and Mrs. VanVlack, of Cape Vincent, N. Y., spent a few days recently visiting the former's brother, T. H. VanVlack.

Mr. Bradshaw, painter and paper hanger of Deseronto, is engaged by Mr. M. S. Madole at the house recently vacated by Mr. Reed.

The Metcalf Canning factory at the west end, are making preparations for enlarging their plant the coming season so as to be able to can corn and peas and fruit. Teams are at present engaged hauling gravel on the grounds.

all should see the facts and acknowledge prophetic fulfilments. Instead of being disappointed that God is using humanity for the fulfilment of His glorious promises, let us rejoice that mankind may be associated with the marvels of Divine Wisdom.

Best of All—Human Restitution.

As man fell from the image and likeness of God, Restitution to him means a return to that image and likeness. Of all the Restitution wonders, this will be the grandest. Were "every prospect pleasing," and humanity vile, sinful, imperfect—mentally, morally and physically—the curse would still rest on the earth. The lifting of some of man's ignorance and superstition is by no means a realization of what is to be expected. If a taste of Divine favor and goodness be so refreshing, what will the full draft be!

This message is meaningless to believers in human evolution. Disbelieving in man's fall from the Divine image in the flesh, these must logically deny also the Redemption, and all necessity for a Saviour to die for our sins. Surely they cannot count it sin to experience evolution, as they claim; and if sin has not been committed, there could be neither Redemption from sin nor Restitution to a condition enjoyed before sin entered the world.

All such theories, therefore, are unscriptural. For this reason they are antagonistic to the Bible view: that man fell from God's image six thousand years ago; that he has passed through six great Days in which there has been a reign of sin and death induced by Satan, and still influenced by him. Under this reign, man has lost much of the Divine image, and has become more or less brutal.

Restitution was not due when Jesus gave His life as man's Redemption-price; but it is due now; for we are living in the dawn of the great Seventh Thousand-Year Day. Messiah's first work as the great King is about to be inaugurated. He is about to bind Satan—"that old serpent, the Devil." He is about to bless humanity by rolling away the curse of death.

Nothing of human Restitution is possible, however, until after the completion of the Church. So particular is this feature of God's Plan that nearly two thousand years have been devoted to it, whereas only one thousand is assigned for the uplift of mankind. God is selecting a saintly class to be His children on the highest plane of existence. These are required to be exceptional characters, and to attest their faithfulness and devotion, even unto death.

CATTLE MARKETS.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, March 3.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ended March 1 were 1100 cattle, 150 sheep and lambs, 2230 hogs and 650 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale amounted to 900 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 250 calves.

A feature of the trade was the stronger feeling in the market for cattle. Prices since this day week show an advance of 25¢ to 50¢ per 100 pounds, which is attributed to the smaller offerings, they being fully 500 head short of a week ago. The gathering of buyers was fairly large and the demand from butchers was good, but packers did not operate to any extent, owing to the fact that some of them bought liberally last week and had ample supplies on hand. However, a good trade was done and the market was fairly active. A few loads of choice steers sold at $7 to $7.15, and picked lots brought as high as $7.25 to $7.50 per 100 pounds. The demand for choice butchers' cows in small lots was good at $6.25 to $6.50 per 100 pounds, and some choice bulls sold at $6.25.

Sheep and lambs were stronger, with prices 25¢ per hundred higher. Small lots sold at from $5.25 to $5.50 for ewes, and $7.75 to $8 for lambs, per 100 pounds. The trade in calves was fairly active, and, as supplies coming forward are not in excess of the requirements, prices rule steady at from $5 to $12 each, as to size and quality.

Hogs were strong, and prices advanced 10¢ to 25¢ per 100. The demand was good, and selected lots sold at $10.10 to $10.25 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7.25 to $7.50; 10., medium, $6 to $6.50; do., common, $4.25 to $5; canners, $3.25 to $3.50; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $6.25 to $6.50; 10., medium, $5.50 to $6; do., bulls, $4.50 to $6.25; milkers, choice, each, $8 to $8.50; 10., common and medium, each, $7 to $7.50; springers, $60 to $65.

Sheep, ewes, $5.25 to $5.50; bucks and rams, $4.75 to $5; lambs, $7.75 to $8. Hogs, f.o.b., $10.10 to $10.25.

Calves, $5 to $12.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Cattle—Receipts, 7,000; market strong. Beefsteers, $7 to $9.25; Texas steers, $5.30 to $6.15; stockers and feeders, $6.25 to $8.75; cows and heifers, $3.35 to $7.60; calves, $7 to $10.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 32,000; market unsettled; light, $8.40 to $8.65; mixed, $8.35 to $8.65; heavy, $8.20 to $8.60; rough, $8.20 to $8.35; pigs, $6.60 to $8.35; bulk of sales, $8.50 to $8.60.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 20,000; market strong; native, $5.25 to $6.50; earlings, $6.75 to $8; lambs, native, $7.40 to $8.70.

LIVERPOOL LIVE STOCK.

LIVERPOOL, March 3.—John Rogers & Co. cable that trade in Birkenhead today, the slow, showed no variation from the last week or two, and Irish steers are still making 13½¢ to 15¢ per pound.

Girl May Have Perished.

KINGSTON, March 4.—It is feared that Elsie Smith, a fourteen-year-old girl who disappeared from the home of W. J. Mallory of Mallorytown, last Wednesday, has perished from cold. No trace of her can be found.

Auditors' Report, Town of Napanee

For the Year Ending December 31st, 1912.

Napanee, 17th Feby, 1913

To the Mayor and Council of the Incorporated Town of Napanee.

Gentlemen:—We your auditors submit our report as follows:
We have audited the accounts of your Treasurer for the year 1912, also Collegiate and Public School accounts.

We hand you in duplicate itemized, abstract assets and liabilities and Collegiate, and Public School accounts as we find them. Your Treasurer has furnished proper vouchers for receipts and expenditures, the Bank statement corresponds with the Treasurer's books excepting the Merchants Bank showing $1 00 more occasioned by a check of $1.00 issued about a year ago and has not been presented to the Bank for payment. The vouchers were carefully filed and easy of access. The accounts are neatly and systematically kept and care has been taken to keep each branch of the works under proper heads.

We have pleasure in certifying that the several accounts are correct and the overdrafts of the banks corresponds with the Treasurer's books. Your Clerk holds bonds for your Treasurer for $8000 00 and also renewal receipts for the same. We consider the security good and ample. The labor of your Treasurer for 1912 has been more than double any preceding year and we consider his salary not in accord with the duties he so faithfully performs.

All of which we respectfully submit.

FORTUNES IN RUBBISH

WASTE PRODUCTS ARE WORTH MILLIONS TO DEALERS.

Every Now and Then Some One Discovers a Use to Which a Despised Article Can Be Put—Shoddy and Mungo Are the Basis of a Great Industry—Old Tins Are Now of Value.

Have you ever considered what a curious and wonderful trade the business of collecting waste materials is? It is bigger and far more interesting than you could ever have guessed, and takes you into all sorts of by-ways where you will make some odd discoveries.

A waste merchant or dealer—there are any number of names under which the business is carried on—is a man who will buy what nobody wants. However useless a thing may seem he can generally find a use for it, and he thrives on this special knowledge of what things are made of, and what they can be made into. Many waste merchants are very rich men, and out of business hours you would never guess that their wealth was drawn from such despised articles as rags or old tins.

An impetus is given to the business every now and then by the discovery of some fresh use to which waste materials can be put.

The first of these impulses was given almost exactly 100 years ago by an Englishman, who discovered that woollen rags could be torn up into a material, then called "rag wool," which was almost as good as the original wool. This simple discovery has revolutionized the woollen industry, and the material, renamed "shoddy" (if made from soft rags, such as stockings), or "mungo," if made of hard rags, is consumed in huge quantities. Within a short radius of Dewsbury, in the heart of the heavy woollen district of Yorkshire, there are over 400 rag-waste merchants, who sell to the woollen and shoddy manufacturers.

The rags are collected all over the country, and even imported from abroad, to the tune of about a million pounds worth a year. So expert are the rag-graders that they can usually tell at a glance from what part of the world any given sample of rag comes.

In the towns of Dewsbury, Batley, Morley, Ossett, Heckmondwike, Eng., and others we have the curious spectacle of a whole country-side flourishing by virtue of the discovery of the uses to which simple woollen rags may be put. How many moderate fortunes have been made in the woollen-rag trade it would not be easy to say, but the number must be very large.

It is practically certain that the coat you are wearing contains a proportion of shoddy. This need not worry you, however, for the same thing has just been pointed out to a well-known Cabinet Minister who has been visiting among the "Raggers."

A word or two about cotton and linen rags. Large quantities of these are used in the better grades of paper. New cotton cuttings are made into cotton shoddy; old lace curtains are torn up for use, mixed with cotton waste, in the balls of engine waste, with which you are familiar if your vocation takes you into any factory. There are plenty of other uses, in-

New cotton cuttings; made into cotton shoddy; old lace curtains are torn up for use, mixed with cotton waste, in the balls of engine waste, with which you are familiar if your vocation takes you into any factory.

There are plenty of other uses, including the manufacture of roofing, felt, etc. What are called "useful" rags—that is, new cuttings of fair size—are sold to capmakers, and other trades which can use them up without remanufacture.

Old tins form a class of material for which no use could formerly be found. As the reader will know, they only contain a very little tin in the form of a coating on the outside, the principal metal, priced at over $1,000 per ton at present, and it was well worth while to try and find some way of extracting it. An ingenious method has now been found of dissolving the tin from the iron and afterwards recovering it from the solution. The discovery was made by a German, but though the largest works are in that country the process is also in use in Great Britain. Huge quantities of tins are collected by the various London cleansing departments and sold to have the tin extracted.

Have you any idea what cordite, celluloid, and artificial silk are made of? All these are comparatively new discoveries, and they are all made, at least in part, out of the cotton waste, which is one of the waste products of the Lancashire cotton industry. One of the things the Balkan War did was to raise the price of low cotton waste, which is used in the manufacture of cordite.

Britain's cotton mills produce over $20,000,000 worth of waste annually.

The aristocrats of the waste trade are, undoubtedly, the big scrap-iron and old-metal merchants, who will purchase anything from an old battleship downwards. "A battleship every now and then, and a torpedo-boat or coasting steamer any day of the week," is the way they put it.

Old metals are, of course, used for melting down and refining. A curious feature is that in some cases the material is better for being old. Thus old horseshoes acquire in the process of use so excellent a temper that they are bought at high prices to make into cutlery.

All the big Government and municipal departments and undertakings and the great railway systems are large producers of different kinds of waste, and, despite the criticisms launched against them, they set a very good example by collecting carefully every little item of old material and selling it to the best advantage. By this means all of them turn a pretty penny in the course of a year. So careful are some of the undertakings that the London (Eng.) County Council actually collects the gas-mantle ash which falls in the council schools.

COLEBROOKE.

On the evening of March 3rd a large number of friends and fellow citizens gathered at the home of Wellington Brown to bid goodbye to Mr. and Mrs. Wartman and Mr. and Mrs. Brown, prior to the departure of both families, who intend to leave for their future home in Napanee. Refreshments were served at midnight after a very enjoyable evening. McMullen then read the following:

Mrs. F. S. Wartman and Mrs. Wellington Brown.

Friends,—On the eve of your departure, we, your friends and neighbors, seize this opportunity to let you know our kind feelings towards you and to express our interest in your future.

We know no better way of expressing our affection than the assembling of us in this hospitable home.

Mr. Wartman, we feel we are losing one who has made his home temporarily with us, but one who has lived with us since childhood whose parents also spent the greater part of their lifetime here. We care to grow reminiscent and recall many happenings of their good citizenship and their good deeds. Here in your youth you took over the manufacturing which you have so successfully carried on to the present day. We feel in losing you we are losing a parcel of the village. We see you, not only in business, home and church circles. You are a man of high principles, a capable worker for the good of the community and a zealous promoter of anything for the betterment of the little village of Colebrooke, but not being confined to the limits of the village, you are reaching the length and breadth of the County.

Mr. Brown, have been a resident, with the exception of a few years spent in the West. Your parents also lived and died here as members of our church. We are sure the fact that whenever you were called upon to help in church work you always responded. Though in a retiring disposition, we know you at all times a kind and reliable friend and a reliable man and integrity.

Knowing you and your estimable character, we feel we are losing kind and obliging neighbors and peace-makers. We are losing those who our parents have made this their home for nearly three-quarters of a century.

It is to add to these words of appreciation that mere costliness cannot constitute the soul of a gift, it is the kind feeling, it is the knowledge that such is the fullness of kind which gives it value, we ask you to accept the gift of an evening lamp. To these we earnestly wish that in future your new homes you may be full of usefulness and that you may be full of blessings for your friends.

On behalf of the people of Colebrooke and vicinity,

Wartman and Mr. Brown very graciously responded. Then followed speeches by Rev. McMullen, J. E. Clarke, Hart, Walker, S. W. Townsend and others, expressing the feeling of regret at the departure of those who have added so much to the life of the community.

BIG FIGHT NOW ON

The decision of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance, confirmed by twelve hundred delegates, to support unequivocally N. W. Rowell's policy of Abolish the Bar, means a struggle to the death on this issue. The verdict of the Alliance reached amid scenes of genuine enthusiasm, cannot fail to have far-reaching effects. Ever since Mr. Rowell introduced his Abolish the Bar platform last year, it has been felt that the Temperance forces of the Province must decide definitely if they were going to support the leader who advocated precisely what they themselves were striving for, or if they were going to temporize and remain neutral in such a crisis. The decision of the Alliance settled this doubt.

The Temperance forces are now united in a strong plank with Mr. Rowell. If the Government is defeated and Mr. Rowell becomes Premier, the abolition of all bar and club licenses will be an accomplished fact. Local option will be left to wipe out the 220 shops still existing in 88 municipalities, if the electors so decide. (The remainder of the 828 municipalities have no shops.) Where shops are not voted out they will be the subject of such further restriction and regulation as experience may prove to be necessary.

PROTECTION OF COMBINES.

Hard work in the interests of the general good of the Province has been the feature of the Opposition's activities in the Legislature. For example, they have been keeping up the fight against Combines. They attacked the Government especially for their failure to prosecute the Stamped Tinware Combine. These merged interests manufactured pie plates, tea kettles, dinner pails, wash basins, lanterns, and a host of other articles used every day in the homes of the people. The Opposition scored the Attorney General for not bringing the firms to trial, but for acting as judge and jury himself in refusing to institute proceedings.

In these days when the cost of living is so important a factor, it is unfortunate to have a Government, which, instead of helping to lower prices, refuses to bring Combines to trial, which, if the charges against them are true, are making the necessities of life scarcer and dearer. Signs all point to the fact that Combines protected by the Government a few years ago are still operating to the detriment of the public welfare.

MR. CURRY'S LETTER.

In connection with the subject of Combines, an important letter was read in the House by Mr. Rowell. It was from Mr. J. W. Curry, who was Crown Attorney at the time the cases were prepared against the Combines. This is what Mr. Curry says this week:

"I was and am of the opinion that the agreements in each case were similar and that in each case there was to my mind sufficient evidence to show that the associations of the different firms in the same line of trade under the said agreements were intended to be and were in restraint of trade and did unduly enhance the price of the articles dealt in by those respective members of each association."

"I felt that the Tack Association, the Stamped Tinware Association and the other associations whose papers were seized, worked greater hardships, NERVOUSNESS APPEARS.

Private members on the Government side looking ahead to next election are growing uneasy at the stand taken by the Prime Minister against much needed improvements in the Factory Act. Mr. Rowell, with the able co-operation of Mr. Studholme, the Labor Member for East Hamilton, has a number of amendments aiming to restrict child labor, to shorten the hours and months when children may work, and generally to improve the conditions of all sorts of factory workers. Divisions have been demanded on these points, and the Government, driven as it looks by some madness which is fast becoming a permanent obsession, have voted down the amendments and declared themselves in favor of keeping conditions as they are. Signs of disaffection are appearing among some conservative members. C. R. McKeown, Dr. Jessop and Dr. Godfrey, are three of the Conservatives who spoke in favor of some of Mr. Rowell's proposals. It is true that the last two did not have the courage to vote against the Government, but they did refrain from taking any part in the vote.

PRANKS OF A POET.

De Musset Had a Mania For Destroying Women's Clothes.

"I was once at the Comedie Francaise, but as a spectator, not as an actress. I had on a white hat, which I had been told suited me quite well. From the box in which I sat I noticed Alfred de Musset, and he caught sight of me, too, so he came to see me between the acts."

"He planted himself in front of me and said rudely: 'You've got a hideous hat on, mademoiselle. I can't imagine how pretty women can dress badly. It's sheer stupidity for any one who has a white skin like yours to go and spoil the effect of her complexion by wearing a white hat.' As he spoke he gave me a bang on the head which quite crushed my hat, turned on his heel and took himself off."

"When I told my friend, Roger de Beauvoir, who knew De Musset well, of the incident he said: 'He is rather addicted to such pleasantries. The other day he was at Tertons with La Mazarine, who was wearing a light green dress, when suddenly, without the slightest warning, he seized a bottle of raspberry sirup and poured its contents over his companion's clothes, completely ruining her toilet. He seems to be afflicted with a mania for spoiling women's clothes.'—'My Autobiography,' by Mme. Judith.

TORY PAPER COMMENTS.

There is interesting reading in a recent editorial in the Toronto World (Conservative) which has the courage to tell Sir James that he himself is re sponsible for the very evident awaken ing of the Liberal Opposition. "Sir James" it said, "has had seven fat years during which the Opposition re mained in a lethal condition; whether he is to have seven lean years remains to be seen. Perhaps the lean cattle of Mr. Rowell's Opposition may develop appetite enough to eat up the Govern ment." "The Opposition," it con cludes, "has wakened up. The mem bers on the Government benches have gone to sleep."

AN UNPOPULAR STEP.

Votes for Corporations is the new cry of the Whitney forces. Nothing much more unpopular could be imagined than to add to the power of corporations by giving them a separate vote apart from the votes of their officers and shareholders as individuals.
Such action, however, has been taken by the Government in the new Municipal Act. When once the general public realizes the significance of the concession, such a hue and cry may be looked for as will compel the repeal of the clause.

when he lowered it to strike his blow he thought of nothing but aiming so truly as to need no second blow. He had had his experience in those old years in a mining camp, and he did not fear failure in this. What he did fear was her utterance of some cry, possibly his name, but she was stunned with horror and did not shriek—horror of him whose eyes she met with her glassy and staring ones as he slowly drew forth the weapon.

Why he drew it forth instead of leaving it in her breast he could not say. Possibly because it gave him his moment of gloating revenge. When in another instant her hands flew up and the tray tipped and the china fell the revulsion came, and his eyes opened to two facts—the instrument of death was still in his grasp, and the diamond, on whose possession he counted, was gone from his wife's breast.

It was a horrible moment. Voices could be heard approaching the alcove—laughing voices that in an instant would take on the note of horror. And the music—ah, how low it had sunk, as if to give place to the dying murmur he now heard issuing from her lips! But he was a man of iron. Thrusting the stiletto into the first place that offered, he drew the curtains over the staring windows, then slid out with his tray, calm, speckless and attentive as ever, dead to thought, dead to feeling, but aware, quite aware in the secret depths of his being that something besides his wife had been killed that night and that sleep and peace of mind and all pleasure in the past were gone forever.

It was not he I saw enter the alcove and come out with news of the crime. He left this role to one whose antecedents could better bear investigation. His part was to play, with just the proper display of horror and curiosity, the ordinary mental brought face to face with a crime in high life. He could do this. He could even sustain his share in the gossip, and for this purpose kept near the other waiters. The absence of the diamond was all that troubled him. That brought him at times to the point of vertigo. Had Mr. Grey recognized and claimed it? If so, he, Abner Fairbrother, must remain James Wellgood, the waiter, indefinitely. This would require more belief in his star than ever he had had yet. But as the moments passed and no contradiction was given to the universally received impression that the same hand which had struck the blow had taken the diamond, even this cause of anxiety left his breast, and he faced people with more and more courage till the moment when he suddenly heard that the diamond had been found in the possession of a man perfectly strange to him and saw the inspector pass it over into the hands of Mr. Grey.

Instantly he realized that the crisis of his fate was on him. If Mr. Grey were given time to identify this stone, he (Abner Fairbrother) was lost and the diamond as well. Could he prevent this? There was but one way, and that way he took. Making use of his ventriloquial powers—he had spent a year on the public stage in those early days, playing just such tricks as these—he raised the one cry which he knew would startle Mr. Grey more than any other in the world, and when the diamond fell from his hand, as he knew it would, he rushed forward and, in the act of picking it up, made that exchange which not only baffled the sus-own board in England, and the adventures thus incurred would make a story in itself. But the result seemed to justify them. Word came after innumerable delays, very trying to Mr. Grey, that he was not the same, though he bore the name of Fairbrother, and was considered by every one around there to be Fairbrother. Mr. Grey, ignorant of the relations between the millionaire master and his man which sometimes led to the latter's personifying the former, was confident of his own mistake and bitterly ashamed of his own suspicions.

But a second message set him right. A deception was being practiced down in New Mexico, and this was how his spy had found it out. Certain letters which went into the sick tent were sent away again, and always to that one address. He had learned the address. It was that of James Wellgood, C—, Maine. If Mr. Grey would look up this Wellgood he would doubtless learn something of the man he was so interested in.

This gave Mr. Grey personally something to do, for he would trust no second party with a message involving the honor of a possibly innocent man. As the place was accessible by railroad and his duty clear, he took the journey involved and succeeded in getting a glimpse in the manner we know of the man James Wellgood. This time he recognized Fairbrother and, satisfied from the circumstances of the moment that he would be making no mistake in accusing him of having taken the Great Mogul, he intercepted him in his flight, as you have already read, and demanded the immediate return of his great diamond.

And Fairbrother? We shall have to go back a little to bring his history up to this critical instant.

When he realized the trend of public opinion, when he saw a perfectly innocent man committed to the Tombs for his crime, he was first astonished and then amused at what he continued to regard as the triumph of his star. But he did not start for El Moro, wise as he felt it would be to do so. Something of the fascination usual with criminals kept him near the scene of his crime, that and an anxiety to see how Sears would conduct himself in the southwest. That Sears had followed him to New York, knew his crime and was the strongest witness against him was as far from his thoughts as that he owed him the warning which had all but balked him of his revenge. When therefore he read in the papers that "Abner Fairbrother" had been found sick in his camp at Santa Fe he felt that nothing now stood in the way of his entering on the plans he had framed for ultimate escape. On his departure from El Moro he had taken the precaution of giving Sears the name of a certain small town on the coast of Maine where his mail was to be sent in case of a great emergency. He had chosen this town for two reasons—first, because he knew all about it, having had a young man from there in his employ; secondly, because of its neighborhood to the inlet where an old launch of his had been docked for the winter. Always astute, always precautionary, he had given orders to have this launch floated and provisioned, so that now he had only to send word to the captain to have at his command the best possible means of escape.

Meanwhile he must make good his position in C—. He did it in the way have known his passenger's real name. He says that he supposed him to be some agent of Mr. Fairbrother's; that among the first orders he received from that gentleman was one to the effect that he was to follow the instructions of one Wellgood as if they came from himself; that he had done so, and not till he had Mr. Fairbrother on board had he known whom he was expected to carry into other waters. However, there are many who do not believe the captain. Fairbrother had a genius for rousing devotion in the men who worked for him, and probably this man was another Sears.

To leave speculation, all was in train, then, and freedom but a quarter of a mile away, when the boat he was in was stopped by another and he heard Mr. Grey's voice demanding the jewel.

The shock was severe and he had need of all the nerve which had hitherto made his career so prosperous to sustain the encounter with the calmness which alone could carry off the situation. Declaring that the diamond was in New York, he promised to restore it if the other would make the sacrifice worth while by continuing to preserve his hitherto admirable silence concerning him. Mr. Grey responded by granting him just twenty-four hours, and when Fairbrother said the time was not long enough and allowed his hand to steal ominously to his breast he repeated still more decisively, "Twenty-four hours."

The ex-miner honored bravery. Withdrawing his hand from his breast, he brought out a notebook instead of a pistol and, in a tone fully as determined, replied: "The diamond is in a place inaccessible to any one but myself. If you will put your name to a promise not to betray me for the thirty-six hours I ask, I will sign one to restore you the diamond before 1:30 o'clock on Friday."

"I will," said Mr. Grey.

So the promises were written and duly exchanged. Mr. Grey returned to New York, and Fairbrother boarded his launch.

The diamond really was in New York, and to him it seemed more politic to use it as a means of securing Mr. Grey's permanent silence than to fly the country, leaving a man behind him who knew his secret and could precipitate his doom with a word. He would therefore go to New York, play his last great card and, if he lost, be no worse off than he was now. He did not mean to lose.

But he had not calculated on any inherent weakness in himself—had not calculated on Providence. A dish tumbled and with it fell into chaos the fair structure of his dreams. With the cry of "Grizel! Grizel!" he gave up his secret, his hopes and his life. There was no retrieval possible after that. The star of Abner Fairbrother had set.

Mr. Grey and his daughter learned very soon of my relations to Mr. Durand, but through the precautions of the inspector and my own powers of self control no suspicion has ever crossed their minds of the part I once played in the matter of the stiletto.

This was amply proved by the invitation Mr. Durand and I have just received to spend our honeymoon at Darlington Manor.

A GREAT INDUSTRY.

Mexico Produces 80 Per Cent. of World's Supply of Pencil Lead.

It is a note worthy fact not generally known that from the isolated Santa Maria mines, situated about 60 miles southeast of Hermosillo, Mexico, comes the graphite which provides the lead for 80 per cent. of the pencils used in the world. This has been the unbroken record of the Santa Maria property for the last 18 years. One pencil does not contain much graphite, to be sure, but when the millions that are in daily use in all parts of the world are considered the aggregate quantity of lead material for their manufacture is very large.

The Santa Maria graphite deposits are the largest upon the American continent, so far as known. They are owned by a syndicate of Americans from Saginaw, Mich. The product of the mines is shipped to Saginaw for treatment, where it is ground and separated by means of air flota-tion and bolting.

In many respects the location and development of these great graphite mines in western Mexico have been attended with romantic and tragic features. They are situated in the heart of the Yaqui Indian country and during the long years of turbu-lency when the Mexican Government was endeavoring to bring these untamed savages into subjection the little mining camp was in constant danger of being attacked by them.
 Raids upon the outlying settlements were frequently made and mining prospectors not infrequently met death at the hands of the Indians.

It was in 1895 that the present
 American owners obtained control of the property and opened up the mines on a large scale. They have operated them continuously ever since then and for several years the mines have been one of the chief sources of graphite in the world.

While 80 per cent. of the pencils that are used in the world contain graphite from the Santa Maria mines, this comprises a very small part of the property's output. Most of the graphite is used in the manufacture of lubricants, for which purpose the product must be very pure and free from grit. A large tonnage is also consumed in the manufacture of paint, foundry facing, powder glazing, electrolytizing and stove polish.

The depths of the workings in the Santa Maria mines has reached more than 175 feet. The graphite bed is from nine to ten feet in thickness. It occupies a very irregular position.
 One mass of the product, which has been worked out, reached a thickness of 24 feet and had a breadth of 75 feet vertically and 150 feet horizontally. The graphite is so soft and friable that a large lump can be taken in the hand and crushed to small particles. It has a velvety surface and is smooth to the touch. So easily mined is it that all the work is done by pick and shovel, no explosives being required.

A Word With a Strange History.

"Treacle," or molasses, is a word with an interesting history. The earliest treacle was an antidote against the viper's bite and probably was made of viper's flesh itself. It is a word with a strange history, descending from the Greek "ther," a wild beast, whence came the adjective
 "theriakos," pertaining to a wild beast, which was eventually specialized to mean saving as an antidote against a wild beast's bite. In English treacle then came to

BLACKBEARD.

The Tragic End of the Bloodthirsty English Pirate.

All the world has heard of "Blackbeard," the English sailor who, after having been a highly respected officer in his majesty's navy, turned pirate and raised the black flag against everything afloat.

This notorious sea robber, whose real name was Teach, I believe, took his pseudonym from the fact that he wore a very heavy black beard, which he was in the habit of doing up in two large braids and tying them up behind his ears. He was a man of gigantic proportions and of surpassing strength.
 His heart was as cruel as that of a tiger. Every now and then, when there was nothing else in sight, he would shoot one or two of his own men—just to keep his practice up!

In the early years of the eighteenth century Blackbeard patrolled the waters of Europe, but it finally became too hot for him there, and he struck out for the coasts of North America.
 How well he plied his trade in the new field is evidenced by the fact that from Nova Scotia to Florida he succeeded in making his name a mortal terror.

In a captured ship of forty guns he entered Charleston harbor and held the town up for a large ransom. From Charleston he passed into the waters of North Carolina, plundering and slay-
 the "Tar Heels," being able to get no aid from their own governor, Eden, appealed to Governor Spotswood of Virginia to relieve them of the terrible pirate, who was making their lives a living hell.

Spotswood did not listen to the appeal in vain. Looking about for some one to put a quietus upon Blackbeard he found the person he wanted in one Robert Maynard, a young officer on his majesty's ship Pearl, which happened to be lying at the time in Chesapeake bay.

Manning a couple of small craft with some sixty resolute men, Maynard set out early in November, 1718, in search of Blackbeard, and on the 21st of the same month found him at Ocracoke inlet, North Carolina. Blackbeard did not know what fear was, young Maynard was as full of fight as a hungry wildcat, and the ball opened at once. The dancing was to the tune of "No Quarter!" For over three hours Maynard and his sixty men fought the pirate and his fifty associates.

Blackbeard sprang to the rail of his ship and seizing a bottle of whisky, drank from it and shouted, "Damna-tion seize my soul if I give you any quarter or take any from you!" "I neither ask for nor will I give you any quarter," roared back Maynard.

In the shallow waters of the Carolina sound the pirate's ship grounded, and Maynard made for her, intending to board her in the final death grapple, but as the two vessels came together Blackbeard anticipated his intended movement and jumped aboard of him with sixteen of his followers. Maynard had but thirteen men left by this time, but with these he tackled the sixteen pirates and their desperate leader.

Crossing swords with Blackbeard, Maynard succeeded in dealing him a death thrust in the throat, and in the meantime his men had killed or wounded all of Blackbeard's followers.

With the sea robber's head spinning of books for awakening the curiosity of children in this form: "What is that which first goes on four legs, then on two and then on three?" It will be remembered that the answer is "Man," who first crawls, then walks and at last uses a cane or crutch, and that the penalty of failure to answer this riddle was that the person so failing should be devoured by the sphinx. When Oedipus answered the riddle correctly the sphinx was changed into stone.

Another famous Greek riddle, dating from 570 B.C., was that propound-ed by Cleobolus, one of the seven wise men of Greece: "Who is this father who has twice six sons? These sons have thirty daughters apiece, parti-colored, having one cheek white and the other black. They never see each other's face nor live more than twenty-four hours."

The answer is Time, who has twelve months, his sons, with daughters of thirty days, half day and half night, each dying ere the other is born. This is the fairest of all the old riddles, for any one with a little thought can guess it. The orientals are still very fond of propounding riddles, and they sit until all hours of the night trying to puzzle one another.

The way to construct a riddle is to start from the answer and work back to the most misleading suggestions, which still may be molded into the real answer.

Honors Are Easy.

It has long been suspected in France that there was a great deal of traffic in decorations and the arrest recently of a man at Toulouse reveals a most elaborate system whereby any one possessing a few francs can purchase the much treasured ribbon and a certificate magnificently setting forth the nature of the honor accorded the purchaser. Most of the recipients of these decorations are foreigners and it would appear that any one doing business with the French republic who has the price can have himself decorated.

A police raid upon the premises of the honors merchant led to the discovery of catalogues and pamphlets relating to the business, together with a number of blank diplomas of honor.
 An enormous correspondence was evidently carried on and a large number of worthies proudly carrying ribbons in their buttonholes are beginning to feel uncomfortable.

Democratic though the third republic professes to be it grants no fewer than 65 different decorations and only 14 of these are genuine old creations, most of them having been established during the present regime. The Legion of Honor and the medal for military service are the most sought after but the agricultural merit order and aca-demical decoration are also highly prized.

Real Economy.

He was a tall colored man with the stamp of a loafer. He entered a pawnshop in a businesslike manner and laid down a bundle.

"Ah want two bits," he said.
 The pawnbroker unwrapped the bundle. It contained a savings bank.
 Inside the bank money rattled.
 "Yo' all thinks Ah don't know much pawnin' dat dere bank," explained the dusky financier. "Ah's not gwine open it, case I'd spen' it all, an' Ah-jes' wants two bits, mister."

The broker handed out the two bits.

 bank with a master key and found $3.

English treacle then came to mean anything soothing or comforting. Chaucer even speaks of Christ as "treacle of all harm." And, as so many soothing remedies were sirups, treacle at length meant simply sirups of various kinds.

A Barbarous Policy.

After the Dutch had taken the Moluccas from the Portuguese they introduced the cultivation of the clove into their own possessions, cut down all the clove trees of the Moluccas and pronounced death on any one who would plant a single clove bush or gather or sell a pound of the product.
Expeditions were sent from their other eastern possessions every year to cut down any bushes that might have accidentally started in the Molucca islands. This barbarous policy made the islands a desert, for, deprived of their forests, the volcanic soil was washed away, and the population starved or was deported.

Peculiarity of Bats.

A century ago Abbe Spallanzani proved that bats could pursue and catch insects without seeing them.
The vibrations of waves from a bat's wings, though of too low frequency to produce sound, are reflected back from obstacles they strike, and it is supposed that the bat is able to detect the reflections and thus to guide its flight.

Restoring Rubber.

People using articles made of rubber that frequently lose their elasticity through oxidation may restore the material to its original condition by a simple process. Soak the part in a mixture of one part of ammonia to two parts water. This is said to be particularly well adapted to the restoring of rubber bands, rings and small tubing which are ready to become dry and brittle.

ANCIENT RIDDLES.

Samson It Was Who Propounded the Oldest One Known.

The oldest riddle known is that one asked by Samson in Judges xiv, 14-18:
"Out of the eater came forth meat,
and out of the strong came sweetness." It was naturally impossible for the guests at his wedding feast to solve the riddle, for it referred to that very uncommon incident of the bees making honey in the carcass of a lion. The old translators used the word meat in the sense of food, its real meaning in the seventeenth century. This riddle dated from possibly 1,000 years before the Christian era and is evidence of the very ancient custom of telling riddles or asking difficult questions.

The riddle of the sphinx is so old that no one can give a real date for it, but it appears even in the latest

The Stone Was Not Thrown.

Genevieve's father occupied the pulpit. "Let him who is without sin, among you be first to cast a stone," he chose for a text. Genevieve listened earnestly to the ensuing discourse. At the close of the service her mother tried in vain to dislodge her from the ministerial pew. Genevieve stood her ground till the rest of the congregation had passed out, then she looked up with a sigh of relief. "Well," she said, "I guess they've all sinned. Anyhow, nobody threw it."

Warmth In Snow.

Snow is warm by virtue of its light and woolly texture. But it is also warm on account of its whiteness. Had snow been black it would have absorbed the heat of the sun and melted quickly.
Instead, it reflects heat, and the reflected heat falls upon bodies above the snow, while the warmth of the earth is preserved beneath it.

THE DANDY BLACK ORPINGTON.

The far famed Dorking, which Caesar bore from Rome to England 55 B. C., has been knocked to splinters by the big pink skinned Orpington. England's now most popular chicken.

England has many varieties, both in rose and single comb, but so far the American Poultry association has admitted but three to the standard—S. C. White, S. C. Buff and S. C. Black.

This breed, originated by the late William Cook at Orpington, England, to a Black Langshan cock with clean legs.

This was a fine combination for eggs and meat, size and beauty, and it was found that the young matured from a month to six weeks earlier than the chicks of the original breeds bred straight.

To get the Blacks to their present perfection was a tedious task, Mr. Cook persevering for seventeen years before he reached his ideal. He made both rose and single comb from this combination.

The Black Orpington is of remarkable vitality. It is large, compact, plump, big breasted, and as a general purpose fowl for fine grained meat and big eggs it is hard to beat.

It should be low in stature, have rich, glossy, black plumage; red comb, face, wattles, ear lobes; dark eyes, black shanks, and the soles of its feet should be pinkish white.

As a market fowl it is rather large for the common call and does not have the butter colored skin and tribys so popular with American market buyers.

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS

Q.—Does a hen always lay at about the same time in the day? A.—While in full lay a hen generally lays about the same hour, and as she nears the end of her clutch of eggs she lays a little later each day until she quits.

Q.—In feeding hens in what proportion should mash stand to solid grain? A.—One pound mash to two pounds grain.

Q.—Is it necessary to put ventilators in the roof of an open front house? Does the Muscovy duck mature as quickly as the Peking? A.—No to both.

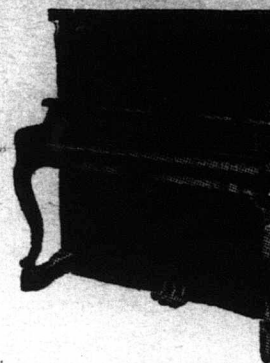

Q.—I have an Orpington here that is pure white, the first one I have seen, and I wish you to tell me how to make him stay white. A.—Very few Orpingtons stay white. The sun and rain seem to conspire to turn them brassy. Some claim that protection from these keep them white. Try it.

Q.—I am from the south, and you are from the north, and there is a matter I wish you to explain. I recently visited my aunt in New York state and found the eggs there fresh, sweet and large and 30 cents per dozen, but down here in Florida the eggs are small, mostly stale and as low as 12 cents. Do you suppose any one could be genius enough to make an egg farm pay here? A.—In the far south many farmers consider hens a necessary evil. They keep small sized mongrels and let them scratch for themselves all summer. Their eggs are laid anywhere and lie in the heat all day, and the bad nesting, handling and storing spoils them. Near towns and cities the farmers market a better product, but in out of the way places the eggs wait for a chance customer and often wait long and, being low in quality, the price is low. An egg farm producing a bon ton laid while you wait product ought to flourish in such rotten egg conditions.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

It is wise for the crate fatterer to be on the lookout for sick and dead fowls, especially in the hot season and toward the end of the feeding period. The removal of a fowl that is off its feed to a grass run often restores it quickly. When a dead fowl is left to putrefy in a crate the whole bunch is often knocked out.

First Ice Machine.

Dr. John Gorrie, a native of Alabama, S. C., was practicing in Apalachicola, Fla. He was a man and fond of making experiments. He conceived the idea of cooling the air in the room by fever patients by taking of the absorption of heat rounding objects by expanding gases. He was so successful that he made actual ice as early as 1845.

In 1850, in the Madison home town, he publicly exhibited his machine and made ice with it. He granted the first patent for an ice machine in the same year. New York papers made fun of him, and Dr. Gorrie could not get enough money to enable him to continue his experiments along large lines in 1853, without having success of the line of work which began.

Jacob Perkins, an American living in England, had made successful experiments with cooling apparatus several years before. Alexander Twining, in America, James Harrison, of Australia, and several French scientists along about the same time were working on the same line of mental machines.

But the first ice factory in the world was established in New Orleans in 1860, and the forerunner of the modern ice plants now being operated. The first ice factory in the United States was first to think of meat to preserve it for long but the notion was adopted by the United States without a moment's delay.—Exchange.

DEEP BREATHING.

It Means Health, It Costs Nothing, Yet Most People Ignore It.

No piece of advice that the physician can give will bear more frequent repetition than the pithy sentence, "Breathe deeply." It is a perfectly simple rule of health, yet it is constantly broken. There is no reason why our lungs should not have all the fresh air they need for their work. The supply is unlimited. But in our folly we refuse to give them their fair share of it because we are too lazy to remember to breathe deeply.

We go from day to day drawing in little inadequate puffs of air, living from hand to mouth, as it were, and then we wonder why we feel tired and nervous, why our skin is sallow and our eyes dull, why we catch cold easily and digest our food badly. When things have come to this pass there is nothing for it except to put ourselves at school and learn patiently to do what we were meant to do unconsciously.

There are two ways to learn to breathe. If our powers of self discipline are poor, as is the case with most insufficient breathers, it is a good plan to join a gymnasium or calisthenic class and learn to use the lungs as a baby learns to use its feet and hands. But remember that lessons in breathing will do no good if the scholar thinks he is absolved from his task except when he is in the class.

A simpler method for those who have not time or opportunity for the gymnasium is to turn life's daily routine into a continuous discipline in breathing. If the poor breather takes the trouble to watch himself carefully he will find that when he is engaged upon any work that calls for close attention he does not even breathe as deeply as usual. He almost invariably holds his breath. Thus the blood current is vitiated when it ought to be cleansed, and the worker exhausts himself, not so much by his labors as by his neglect.

Learn to make a breathing lesson of dressing in the morning, of going up and down stairs, of your duties in household, office or shop, of your walks, your games and your rest. Draw in deep drafts of air every time you take a breath and every little while stop everything else and fill your lungs a few times with breaths that test their capacity. You will be surprised to see the improvement that it will make in your general condition.

WONDERS OF THE KREMLIN.

Crowning and Burial Place of the Czars For Centuries.

The Kremlin in Moscow, like the Forbidden City in Peking, is enclosed by a wall entirely independent of that encircling the city. It marks the part which escaped the great conflagration when the outlying districts of Moscow were burned by the Russians, who were besieged by Napoleon. The present wall replaced one of oak—some 600 years ago—which, like the Great wall of China, was erected as a defence from the Tartars.

Within this inclosure are the imperial palace, the treasury, the arsenal and three cathedrals, which for centuries have respectively been the places of the crowning, the marrying and the burying of the czars of this great nation. The inclosure also contains a convent and many great monuments. On one side, far below, flows the river Moskva, from which the city

A MITE OF A REPUBLIC.

Moresnet Is Only One and a Quarter Square Miles In Extent.

The smallest state in Europe, the autonomous republic of Moresnet, is on the boundary between Germany and Belgium.

Moresnet has an area of barely one and a quarter square miles and a population of 3,500. It owes its existence to a boundary controversy for the control of a once important zinc mine. A boundary commission settling the frontiers of Holland and Prussia after the fall of Napoleon in 1814 was unable to agree upon the ownership of this tiny piece of land, with its valuable mining rights, and finally left the question for future settlement. Neither power was to occupy it, and it was administered jointly by the two states.

In practice the joint administration soon resulted in an administration by neither state, and the community became autonomous under the protection and tutelage of Prussia and Holland and later of Prussia and Belgium. In 1841 the two guaranteeing countries regularized this and formally gave the district its own independent administration. It has no courts, but litigants can choose between the Belgium and Prussian tribunals in beginning litigation, which is subject to the laws neither of Germany nor of Belgium, but of the ancient Code Napoleon.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

PRIMITIVE ARAB LIFE.

Desert People Still Have the Customs of Abraham's Time.

In the wild deserts Arab life is as primitive as in Abraham's time. Sheep are still slain to seal a vow. The salt or bread covenant is observed, and when a man dies his tent is torn down and destroyed.

Old names such as Joseph, Moses and Alexander are still in common use among Arabs, though pronounced "Yusuf," "Musa" and "Skandar."

To divorce his wife a man may repeat the formula Ent telek three times. Usually saying it once makes the woman behave, and its repetition is not necessary.

The "evil eye" superstition is common, and the first injunction given a visiting foreigner by experienced Arabian travelers is that he must not point at animals or persons in Arab settlements.

Arabs say a man gifted with this malign power can look at a bird flying in the air and that it will drop dead; that if he chooses to cast his wicked spell on a camel it may go lame or a child so selected will be struck blind.

None of the lower class can read or write, but the Arab is noted for his ready wit and his habit of speaking in allegory.—Christian Herald.

The Human Brain.

In estimating the size of the human brain in comparison with the brain of other animals we must figure on not only the positive size, but the relative. Were this not the case man would stand below the elephant and whale, as the brains of those creatures far exceed man's in positive size, while as regards relative size they stand so far below him that, while the brain of the elephant amounts to about the five-

MR. ALEX. MCCARTER

WALKERTON ONT., MAY 9th. 1911.

"I have been in Walkerton in business for a good many years and many of my townsmen know that my health, for long periods was precarious. My trouble was extreme Nervousness, brought on by Indigestion and Dyspepsia, from which I suffered in the most severe form. It was so bad that I could not sleep before about four in the morning. I noticed one of your published testimonials of how someone had used "Fruit-a-tives" for similar trouble and asked Mr. Hunter, my druggist, his opinion on the matter and he advised their use. I immediately procured several boxes and I am pleased to say that I now enjoy splendid health and could not possibly feel better. I can eat with every degree of satisfaction and sleep without an effort. I strongly advise anyone suffering from like complaints, to commence using "Fruit-a-tives". ALEX. MCCARTER.

"Never mind the meat, dear," said Mrs. Billiams. "I've more concerned to know what ails you. This is the first time for twenty-five years that you haven't been able to tell exactly what ailed the meat and everything else on the table. Aren't you well today, John?"—London Mail.

First Ice Machine.

Dr. Gorrle, a native of Charleston, S.C., was practicing medicine in Napanee, Fla. He was a scientific experimenter and fond of making experiments. He conceived the idea of artificially making ice in the rooms occupied by patients by taking advantage of the absorption of heat from surrounding objects by expanding volatile ether. He was so successful as to make ice as early as 1843.

In the Madison hotel, in Napanee, he publicly exhibited his machine and made ice with it. He was the first patent for an ice machine in the same year. The machine was made fun of in the Napanee papers but Dr. Gorrle could not get money to enable him to make it along large lines. He died without having seen the successful line of work which he had performed. Dr. Gorrle, an American engineer from England, had made some successful experiments with cooling apparatus years before. Professor Twining, in America, and Dr. Harrison, of Australia, as well as French scientists, came to the same time with experiments.

The first ice factory of importance in the world was established in Napanee in 1860, and it became the manner of the thousands of factories being operated. The Napanee first to think of freezing and reserving it for long keeping. The Napanee first to adopt in the Napanee without a moment's delay.

pieces of the crowning, the marrying and the burying of the czars of this great nation. The inclosure also contains a convent and many great monuments. On one side, far below, flows the river Moskva, from which the city takes its name. From the river's opposite bank the view of the splendor of this collection of buildings is unsurpassed.

Probably nowhere in the world does an inclosure of the dimensions of that described by the wall of the Kremlin contain precious stones ap-proximating the value of those displayed here. It has been aptly stated that they should not be counted by thousands, but measured by the peck.
To guard them 800 soldiers are constantly in and around these buildings.
The Ivan or bell tower is the most conspicuous structure in the inclosure and contains thirty-six bells, two of which are of silver, the largest of the collection weighing sixty-five tons.

This large bell seems to lose its magnitude when we come to examine the one resting on a stone foundation just outside the tower, which weighs 200 tons. It was originally intended to hang within the walls, but soon after it was cast a fire destroyed the building which sheltered it, causing nino gaping cracks and the displacement of a piece of the bell weighing nine tons. Owing to this misfortune its tongue has ever remained mute.

Not far from the bell tower stands the arsenal, in front of which is a display of 850 bronze cannon, trophies captured from the Turks and French.
Prominent among these is the "great gun," its mouth having a diameter of three feet, surrounded by so thin a shell that regard for safety probably accounts for the fact that it, like the great bell, has never spoken.

These two curios, coupled with Moscow's prevalent paving material, are spoken of as the three ancient wonders of the city—"the heaviest bell which never was rung, the largest cannon which never was fired and the greatest amount of cobblestone pavement" (which ought to be fired).

A Snail on a Razor.

That snails can pass over such sharp instruments as a razor's edge without the slightest harm has been demonstrated by a French scientist in the course of his study with these creatures. The snail walks with the whole under surface of its body and is provided with means to lubricate the road on which it travels. A peculiarly complex system of muscles enables it to cling in any position to smooth objects. In lifting itself over the razor's edge it clings with the hind part of its walking surface to one side of the blade and extends the fore part and bends it down on to the other side without touching the edge, thus accomplishing without harm what would naturally seem impossible.

Tea—Medicine and Poison.

Tea has been extolled as a medicine and decried as a poison. In the British Museum there is a broad sheet issued by the founder of Garraway's, in which it is claimed for tea that it
"helpeth the headache, removeth the obstructions of the spleen, cleareth the sight and purifieth adult humors and a hot liver. It prevents and cures agues, surfeits and fevers; prevents consumption, is good for colds, drop-sies and scurries and expelleth infection." Tom Hood, on the other hand, declared that—

If wine's a poison so is tea, stand below the elephant and whale,

ceed man's in positive size, while as regards relative size they stand so far below him that, while the brain of the elephant amounts to about the five-hundredth and that of the whale to three-thousandth part of the bodily weight of these animals respectively, the brain of man varies from one-thirty-fifth to one-thirty-seventh of his entire weight. This shows the immense superiority of the human brain as compared with the brains of the lower animals.—New York American.

The Ideal Beauty In Japan.

In the Japanese ideal of beauty these are the desired "points." Her face and figure, hands and feet and her nose must be long and narrow, her arms and limbs slender and her hips small. Broad hips are the unpardonable sin. Few Japanese women measure five feet, so the length of the

I Will Stake This Medicine Against Your Time

A Few Days Will Be Sufficient to Prove That You Are Curable

A few minutes of your time for a few days and I will demonstrate to you, without expense to yourself, that I have a medicine that drives Uric Acid poison from the system and by so doing cures kidney trouble, bladder trouble and rheumatism.
I don't ask you to take my word for it, but simply want you to let me send you some of this medicine so that you can use it personally.

I am trying to convince sufferers from these diseases that I have something far better than the usual run of remedies, treatments and such things, and the only way I can demonstrate that fact is to go to the expense of compounding the medicine and sending it out free of charge. This I am glad to do for any sufferer who will take the time to write me. Understand, I will not send you a so-called "sample, proof or test treatment," nor will I send you a package of medicine and say that you can use some of it and pay for the rest, but I will send you a supply free of charge and you will not be asked to pay for this gift nor will you be under any obligations.

All I want to know is that you have a disease for which my medicine is intended, as it is not a "cure-all," and I give herewith some of the leading symptoms of kidney, bladder and rheumatic troubles. If you notice one or more of these symptoms you need this medicine, and I will be glad to send you some of it if you will write me the numbers of the symptoms you have,
give your age, and your name and address. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lyn-not, 843 Franklin Building, Toronto, Ont. You promise me nothing; you pay me nothing for it. All I ask of you is shall be no mistake, is that you send me the numbers of your symptoms or a description in your own words, and that you take the medicine according to the directions I send you. It is my way of getting publicity for my medicine so that it will become widely known.

You will agree when you have used it that it dissolves and drives out uric acid poison. It tones the kidneys so that they work in harmony with the bladder. It strengthens the bladder so that frequent desire to urinate and other urinary disorders are banished.
It stops rheumatic aches and pains immediately. It dissolves uric acid crystals so that back and muscles no longer ache and crooked joints quickly straighten out. It reconstructs the blood and nerves so that you soon feel healthier and more vigorous, sleep better and eat better and have energy throughout the day. It does all this, and yet contains nothing injurious and is absolutely vouched for according to law.

Sufferers from these dreadful and dangerous diseases can surely afford to spend a few minutes each day for a

DR. T. FRANK LYNNOT
who will send medicine to anyone free of charge

few days to demonstrate to their own satisfaction if they are curable, especially when you consider no expense is involved, and I willingly give you my time and my medicine. All any fair-minded afflicted person wants to know is if a certain thing will cure HIM or HER, and here is an opportunity to find out without cost, obligation or important loss of time. THESE FEW DAYS may be the turning point in your life.

All who are interested enough to write me for the free medicine will also receive a copy of my large illustrated medical book which describes these diseases thoroughly. It is the largest book of the kind ever written for free distribution, and a new edition is just being printed. I will also write you a letter of diagnosis and medical advice that should be of great help to you; but in order to do this I must know that you need my medicine. Write me the numbers of the symptoms that trouble you, and your age, and I will promptly carry out my promises. Show an inclination to be cured and you will be.

These Are the Symptoms:

- 1—Pain in the back.
- 2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
- 3—Burning or obstruction of urine.
- 4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
- 5—Prostatic trouble.
- 6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
- 7—General debility, weakness, dizziness.
- 8—Pain or soreness under right rib.
- 9—Swelling in any part of the body.
- 10—Constipation or liver trouble.
- 11—Palpitation or pain under the heart.
- 12—Pain in the hip joint.
- 13—Pain in the neck or head.
- 14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
- 15—Pain or swelling of the joints.
- 16—Pain or swelling of the muscles.
- 17—Pain and soreness in nerves.
- 18—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

Representatives of County Councils Lennox and Addington and Frontenac waited on Provincial Secretary, W. J. Hanna, accompanied by W. D. Black, M.L.A. Addington, concerning said Counties' arrangements with the House of Providence and House of Industry, Kingston, for care of poor. The Provincial Secretary assured the deputation that the Government had no wish to enforce the provisions of the Statute relating to erection of Houses of Refuge against any County that was already making proper and suitable provision for its poor with existing institutions. The worthy Kingston Institutions and the Counties can no doubt make satisfactory arrangements between themselves for renewal of existing contracts if left to themselves without the unsolicited interference of outsiders.

Trinity Church Notes.

Mr. T. C. Tice conducted a very interesting and profitable Bible Study on the Parable of the Talents on Monday evening before the Young People's Association. Mr. D. A. Nesbitt will have charge of the meeting on Monday evening next. Let all the members be present. The Anniversary Services conducted last Sunday by the Rev. T. W. Neal, of Kingston, were a pronounced success, notwithstanding the stormy weather. Mr. Neal preached two very able, interesting, practical and eloquent sermons. The congregation was delighted with the sermons. The offering was liberal.

Bath Room Window Display.

Messrs. Boyle & Son have in their east window something that would do credit to any city, and it is worth any one's time to take a stroll that way to see this window. Those who have Bath Rooms can see the improvements that have been made. Those who contemplate putting in a room can get suggestions. The Bath and closet are under water pressure, you cantell just how it will work in your house. The closet is almost noiseless, the nearest yet accomplished, and the manner and care taken in placing these fixtures goes to show they understand their business. It is of considerable importance in putting in a Bath room to know it will be sanitary and done by thorough and practical men. We congratulate Messrs. Boyle & Son on this window and are glad to know that we have an enterprising firm of this kind in our up-to-date Town.
Little things of this kind attract strangers' attention and give the place a good name.
